MARSEILLAISE IS AT SUNDAY "SING"

Can you imagine three years or even one year ago finding a group of American people trying to learn to sing "The Marselllaise" in French? That munity Sing" given at the Central High School yesterday afternoon when more than 2,000 persons came, not to be entertained, but to sing and to enjoy singing.

The War Department commission on training camp and civic recreation activities tried another experiment at this second "sing," and it proved a highly successful one. It demon-strated, too, that many of the complaints about the ambiguous term "the American public" are entirely ground-less, for a most representative Ameri-can public spent an afternoon with no program offered them, no diversion other than the one they themselves provided, disproving the theory that are a body of passive spectators, with no resources within ourselves.

Army and Navy Pitted, -

True, there was a challenge offered in a contest between the army and the navy. The army was represented by Kenneth Clark, the popular song leader of Camp Meade, and the navy by Gilbert Wilson, the song leader of Quantico, who has a smile and a manner that have won his public here completely. The championship, however, was not decided. Mr. Wilson had established a certain song the week before, and when Mr. Clark gave it in another manner the "public" would have none of it. Mr. Clark scored a victory, though, in the way he drew a somewhat shy male contingent into the contest by giving/them certain ac-cented words to sing out with a zest that quite awoke the echoes of the

The joy of all the people in the singing see.ned a proved fact, for the many who filled every seat, with some standing, not one left before the pr gram was completed. The most sig-nificant fact, musically, is the taste and feeling that these song leaders manage to bring out in so large and inexperienced a body of singers. No little of the success of the day was due to Mrs. Gilbert Wilson at the

Gilbert Wilson Sings.

Upon request Gilbert Wilson gave a solo, singing with impressive effect a song by Sir Edgar Elgar, "The Land of Hope and Glory," a song that has become almost a national anthem to England and is very dear to the Brit-

The committee found it impossible obtain the services of the Commuty Orchestra for more than every other Sunday, but it is thought it can be a feature of these occasions at least that often. The degree of un-certainty as to the part the audience is to play on the programs should whet the interest. To feel all the re-sponsibility, as yesterday, will be an incentive to lend hearty voices to the hearts of those who are to "keep the home fires burning," for that is what it is all about—and bigthat is what it is all about—and big-ger things are promised for the fu-ture. J. MacB.

Capt. John Alvin Travis, doorkeeper to the House and Senate Galleries for pearly half a century, died at his home, 1008 East Capitol street, early yesterday morning. He had served forty-seven years in the Capitol, and was eighty-one years old.

In the days of the forty-second Congree, and when Ulysses S. Grant was President, the man at the House gallery door was Capt. "Johnny" Travis.

He ushered the elite of Washington to her the debates; he heard some of the gretest speeches ever made in America, and was on speaking terms with many of the nation's greatest iswmakers. Eleven presidents served in the White House and hundreds of Congressmen came and went during the period Captain Travis stood guard. He lost a leg in the battle of Chan-

Two years ago, upon the completion of his forty-fifth year at the Capitol, he received a letter of congratulation from President Wilson.

Funeral services will be held from his home this afternoon at 5 o'clock, the Rev. Freely Robrer conducting the services. Burial will be at Cap-tain Travis' former home, Andover, He is survived by his widow Mrs. Amy Spaulding Travis.
